Businessman's blessing at the table: "Dear Lord, we beg to acknowledge receipt of your favors of recent date, and hope to merit same. We will appreciate your continuation of these courtesies."—Bernard B. McCaller in Eatonton Messenger.

When you begin getting mail addressed with "Hon." as a prefix to your name, then you can know that election day is just around the corner. I never am an honorable exception about a month before election time. One of these days I am going to open one of those letters and see for what office the guy is running. —Earl Pickle in Early County News.

Some of the people living in the big cities are raising considerable sand at the idea of not getting but one mail delivery per day. This oldtimer well remembers a time in this neck of the woods when people considered themselves lucky to be able to get their mail twice a week, and then have to go five miles to the post office after it. —O. G. Parrish in Sparks Eagle.

The modern housewife can beat grandma four ways at once cooking cabbage. Grandma "sliced'em down" from breakfast until time for the farm bell for dinner. It took oodles of pepper, onions and the like to make the red things go down. A 1950 cook fries cabbage about 3 minutes and better still, about once every five years. —A. C. Jolly in Bartow Herald.

Hugh Park in Atlanta Journal: A well-known gentleman with a [illegible] started an attractive but trusting young woman to a ball game the other night. It was the first time she had ever seen a ball game. Her escort began to explain this comparatively rare situation as inning after inning passed by. After a while he turned to her and said, "I think I should prepare you for what is going to happen in a few moments. The people who attend these games have become accustomed to doing me a big honor and I am afraid that you will have to participate in a short ceremony. Just do as I do." He arose to his feet and the whole crowd of thousands of fans followed. Then after standing briefly, he sat down again being imitated by the crowd. Of course, as everyone who has attended a ball game knows, the fans had taken their customary stretch in the seventh inning. Anticipating their action, the man had arisen early, and then sat down before the rest of the audience. His date was awed by the performance, and her admiration was so openly expressed that the heartless gent gave her permission to tell her office staff about the spectacle the next morning.

Information On Social Security Cards

Appomattox County business establishments and individual employers should be especially careful about employees' Social Security numbers at this time of the year. This caution was given by J. W. Dinwiddie, Manager of the Lynchburg Social Security office, during his visit here this week.

"About this time each year," Mr. Dinwiddie said, "there are many young persons going to work for the first time. Sometimes these young people forget to get Social Security cards before they get jobs. It is the employer's duty," Dinwiddie explained, "to keep a record of each employee's Social Security number. If an employer hires a person who does not have a number, the employer should tell that person to get a number right away."

It is easy to get a Social Security number. Every post office has a supply of application blanks for Social Security numbers. Anyone who needs a Social Security number should get one of these blanks from the post office, fill it out, and mail it to the Lynchburg Social Security office.

Social Security numbers are important, because they help the government keep account of each worker's wages. When a working person reaches age 65, or when he dies, Social Security pays off. If a person does not have a Social Security card when he goes to work, there is a chance that he may not get credit for all of his wages.

There are no charges or fees for getting a Social Security card. Also, there are no charges for any service from the Lynchburg Social Security office. Anyone desiring information about Social Security should write to the Social Security office, Lynchburg.

Appomattox Listed In Travel Exhibit

Richmond, June 14.- The Virginia Travel Council today announced the completion of a mammoth exhibit of Virginia's scenic and historic attractions, which will be shipped around the nation to advertise Virginia at conventions, fairs, expositions and other gatherings. The exhibit immediately will go to the national Junior Chamber convention in Chicago, under the auspices of the Virginia Junior Chamber of Commerce. It will return only long enough for additions to its contents to be made and then spend two weeks advertising Virginia in Miami. The Council stated today that the demands for the exhibit are so great that it hopes to build a duplicate within the year.

Featuring the historic map of Virginia, made by the Council for the State Highway Commission, the exhibit shows pictures of historic spots, scenic attractions and natural wonders in the state. It is built so that it may be used in part or as a whole. Special panels feature natural wonders, cities Jamestown, Yorktown, Appomattox and Stratford, where General Lee was born. A special section will be added for Williamsburg, which is now featured in the central display only.

The exhibit was designed by a committee headed by Tom McCaskey, of Colonial Williamsburg. Reproductions are in oil painting.

To Install New Valve In Water Line

A series of tests of the water mains, lines and fixtures on the South side of the N & W tracks in Appomattox are being run each morning of this week in preparation for installation of a valve at the base of the old town water tank on Monday, June 19. On that date it will be necessary to drain all the water from the old tank to make the valve installation, and water consumed will come from the new tank until installation is completed. It is hoped that the job will be completed on the above date, but all water users are requested to be economical with water Monday.

The installation of this valve is necessary to allow continued pumping of water should an emergency arise for any reason that would require continuous pumping of water and to make possible the benefit of the storage capacity of the two tanks jointly or individually in an emergency.

Dumb Animals Die On Va. Highways, Too

Some 22,730 dumb animals were killed on Virginia highways and buried by maintenance forces of the State Highway Department during the six-month period which ended June 1, the road agency reported this week.

The figures includes 5,818 cats, 4,109 dogs, 5,388 rabbits, 5,572 miscellaneous animals (opossums, groundhogs, deers, etc) and 2,106 skunks.

The total does not include pets killed on the highways and removed by their owners, the department said. In this connection, a spokesman pointed out that it's the owner's responsibility to remove his dead animals from the highway. A penalty for failure to do is provided in the 1950 Code of Virginia, Section 33-294.

The six-month tabulation of animals buried by highway forces was initiated in December as part of a maintenance cost study.

The over-all burial cost to the state was estimated at $82,730 . . . or one dollar per animal, based on the average time and travel distance required to bury each animal.
